Peking Day By Day

BY "QUI VIVE"

Peking August 11.—The presentation of the famous Lincheng note yesterday has caused consternation in the various political and militaristic camps. Couched in the strongest possible language it was strongly reminiscent of that other famous note delivered to China some twenty-two years ago, entitled: "The Protocol of 1901," the result of the Boxer invasion.

A comparison of the two documents is especially interesting at the present time since the language is practically identical. In addition to dealing with the outrage of the wrecking of the "Blue Express" on the Tientsin-Pukow railway on the night of May 5-6 and the kidnapping of twenty-seven foreigners, the note also deals at great length with the whole question of brigandage throughout China. Similarly the previous Protocol not only dealt with the actual Boxer trouble but also took into consideration the fact of anti-foreign feeling throughout China and demanded guarantees for the safety of nationals travelling, as well as the protection of the "inalienable rights of citizens of other nations."

The reason for the similarity is not so difficult to find when it is remembered that M. Oudendyke, the Dutch Minister, who was present in Peking in 1901 as Secretary to the Dutch Legation, is the present Minister and while the Lincheng note was signed by all the members of the Diplomatic Body, it is hinted that M. Oudendyke wrote most of it.

Despite the fact that the majority of the daily newspapers of Peking suspended publication yesterday out of deference to the death of President Harding, nevertheless comment was not wanting regarding both the text and tenor of the Lincheng note.

Although the members of the Diplomatic Corps refused to be quoted on the subject, stating that the very fact of their signatures was sufficient evidence of their concurrence in the note, there was considerable feeling that at last the diplomats had stopped their wavering and had adopted a firm and unequivocal stand. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that the entire foreign attitude vis-a-vis China was crystalised in the note, and that progress in questions of supervision of railways, the safeguarding of foreign life and property as well as striking the source of trouble in China—viz. brigandage—at the root, had been made.

The Chinese attitude although outwardly calm, as usual, nevertheless showed that the present members of the government as well as the military officials attached profound importance to the note.

At ten o'clock yesterday evening an official statement was issued on behalf of the Waichiaopu regarding the note. The statement read:

"At the cabinet meeting this afternoon, upon the motion of Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, it was decided to appoint two representatives from the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of War and the Ministry of Communications as a committee to act in conjunction with the heads of departments of the Waichiaopu to facilitate decisions regarding the Lincheng Note."

Dr. Wellington Koo left hurriedly last night for Peitaiho, being summoned to the bedside of Mme. Koo, who is reported quite ill. He took two secretaries with him and stated that he would devote as much attention as possible to the note, and would return to Peking at the earliest possible moment to take up the question with other members of the committee.

Admiral Wu Yu-lin, Minister of Communications, returned last night from a long conference with Mr. Chang Hu at the latter's Summer estate not far distant from Shanhaikwan. According to reports published in the Chinese press, Admiral Wu's mission, the inducement of Mr. Chang Hu to accept the portfolio of the Ministry of Finance, had been successful.

Mr. Chang Hu has been the "dark horse" candidate for the finance portfolio during the past week, but no direct move was made in his direction because of the known opposition to him from several factions of parliament.

It was thought that at the last minute it might be possible to pursuade Mr. Wang Keh-min to accept the portfolio since he had found it advisable to resign from the Governorship of the Bank of China, "for reasons of health," but the latter has proved obdurate to all offers, stating this his decision was irrevocable. It was said in some quarters last night that a mandate would be issued today by the Cabinet

Lincheng Note Lays Down Stiff Terms; France To Increase Naval Forces

Paris Decides To Send More Warships, As Means Of Impressing Peking; Full Text Of Communication

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 12.—In connection with the presentation of the joint Note to China regarding the security of foreigners and foreign interests, the Government has decided to strengthen its naval forces in China.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 10.—The full text of the Note on the Lincheng Affair, presented to the Waichiaopu at noon today by the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, H. E. Senhor de Freitas reads as under:

Mr. Minister:

In continuation of previous communications addressed to the Chinese Government relative to the Lincheng incident (the attack on an express train on the Tientsin-Pukow line during the night of the 5th-6th May, 1923, in the course of which foreigners were carried into captivity by the brigands), the Diplomatic Body has the honor to notify the Government above mentioned of the decisions which it has reached concerning:

(1) The damages which the Diplomatic Body proposes to claim from the Chinese Government for the victims of the outrage;

(2) The guarantees which the Diplomatic Body considers to be necessary for the future; insistence on the responsibility of the military governors and other authorities; measures for the protection of the railways;

(3) Sanctions. Punishment of the officials or employees of the railway who were guilty in this matter, neglect of duty or of complicity with the brigands.

I—DAMAGES

The Diplomatic Body claims damages from the Chinese Government for the foreigners who were victims of the Lincheng incident.

These damages will be classified into the following categories.

(A) Compensation for loss of baggage and objects which were either stolen or lost at the time of the attack on the train and for individual medical attention rendered to the prisoners during the period of their detention, these will be based on the statements of the persons concerned in the presence of their respective Consuls.

(B) Compensation for the loss of life and of liberty and for sufferings and indignities undergone by all the foreign travellers while in the hands of the brigands: $90,000 Mex. for the foreign traveller who was killed on May 6 at the time of the attack on the train by the brigands; $500 Mex. per prisoner per day for the first three days of detention, May 6, 7 and 8; $100 Mex. per prisoner and per day during the week commencing May 9; $150 Mex. per prisoner and per day during the week commencing May 16; $200 Mex. per prisoner and per day during the week commencing May 23; $250 Mex. per prisoner and per day during the week commencing May 30; $300 Mex. per prisoner and per day during the week commencing June 5;

(C) Compensation to cover reimbursements of the amounts expended in supplying relief to the prisoners.

In formulating the above mentioned demands for definite indemnities (A. B and C.) the Diplomatic Corps declares that the foreign victims of the Lincheng incident are entitled to receive from the Chinese Government supplementary indemnities varying according to individual cases as compensation for bodily injuries, medical attention, loss of earnings and temporary or permanent decrease of earning capacity caused by their captivity or in consequence thereof. Individual demands will be examined and formulated in each case by the legation of the person interested.

The Diplomatic Corps endorses the demands presented or to be presented separately by several Legations for damages suffered by foreign prisoners of brigands in Honan from June to December, 1923, thereby indicating clearly that the Diplomatic Body has been notified of these demands and approves them in principle.

II—GUARANTEES

The Diplomatic Body notes with great regret that the brigands infest not only the province of Shantung but all or a part of the provinces of Chihli, Kiangsu, Honan, Anhui, and other provinces and that the means employed at present to suppress them are notoriously inadequate. The first duty of the Chinese Government being to maintain order and protect foreigners and Chinese against violent acts and outrages on the part of the brigands, the Diplomatic Body invites the Chinese Government to take through the agency of the inspecting generals, military governors, etc., immediate steps to co-operate in organising with the help of their best troops vigorous operations against the bandits. The Diplomatic Body will eventually instruct the Military Attachés of the foreign

SETTLE DISPUTE BETWEEN CHINESE AND MISSIONARIES

Obnoxious Society Suspends Operations In Chikungshan

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, August 8.—Mr. Chen Chieh, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs of Hankow, has just returned from a successful mission to Chikungshan where he stayed four days settling differences between the Chinese Public Welfare Society and the foreign missionary community of Chikungshan. The foreigners at Chikungshan have had some trouble with the Chinese society and they are also dissatisfied with the Deputy of Police Force there.

As both the society and the Police Deputy are connected with General Chin Yun-ao, a division Commander of Honan who has been in charge of bandit suppression along the Peking-Hankow line, two foreign missionaries, Bishop White of Kaifengfu, and Rev. O. R. Wold, Principal of the Shekow Theological Seminary, representing the General Purpose Society, called on General Chin recently. They tried to effect some agreeable settlement, but the result is not satisfactory. Mr. Chen called on General Chin as well as the foreign missionaries, and as a result of his mediations which proved satisfactory to both sides, a very agreeable arrangement has been made.

The Chinese society will suspend its operations, while the principal promoter, Mr. Woo, of the society will leave Chikungshan very shortly.

Asked as to the general situation around Chikungshan, Mr. Chen stated that Chikungshan is well guarded by troops, police forces and special sentinels. All the important posts and passes on the mountain are protected, and a patrol service day and night with one lien of troops and fifty armed policemen is keeping Chikungshan sufficiently protected.

3 SENTENCED TO DEATH IN POISONING OUTRAGE

Hangchow School Poison Case Trial Ends

ARSENIC RICE

Former Student Leader And Two Cooks To Die

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Aug. 11.—As the outcome of the murder of 24 persons when the entire student body of the First Chekiang Normal School at Hangchow was poisoned on the opening day of the new term last February sentences of death were imposed today by the Hangchow District Court on Yu Er-heng, former student leader, and Chien Ah-li and Pi Ho-song, who were cooks at the school. The poisoning of the student body of the Normal School, it is held, was the gravest crime in all the criminal annals of Chekiang province.

Besides the death penalties imposed by the Court, a fourth sentence of five years imprisonment was given in the case of Yu Tsang-fa, a clerk in the employ of the Educational Administration of Chekiang, who was charged with being an accomplice in that he had guilty knowledge of the crime.

HELD PROMINENT PLACE

The case is particularly noteworthy by the fact that Yu Er-heng formerly was a prominent figure in the activities of the school and held the place of Chairman of the Student Council.

Testimony given at several trials that were held disclose that when the new school term was about to open Yu Er-heng found himself facing the prospect of disgrace because he had embezzled something over $200 of the students' funds that had been entrusted to him as head of the Students' Council.

As a measure to avert the exposure he determined to poison the whole student body on the opening day of the term. To carry out this purpose he bribed one of the cooks Chien Ah-li, by paying the sum of $30 to him to abstract from the school laboratory a bottle of arsenic to be placed in the rice at the first evening meal served in the school dormitory. The other cook, Pi Ho-sing learned something of the plot and he also was bribed to have a part in it.

ALL ARE STRICKEN

The havoc that was wrought by the conspirators on the night the crime was committed perhaps never will be forgotten in Hangchow, for the whole student body as well as a number of members of the faculty and servants were thrown into paroxysms of agony when the poison took effect. In all nearly 250 individuals were all stricken at the same time and through the night every physician and nurse as well as many others strove to render aid. Within the first twenty-four hours nearly twenty died and the toll mounted until 24 had succumbed. Physicians were called from Shanghai to give aid in the emergency when a large number were hovering between life and death.

Through the course of all the hearings that were held Yu Er-heng maintained a bold demeanor presenting a bold denial to the assertions of the two cooks, both of whom made full confessions soon after they had been arrested.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Dr Gustav Stresemann, the leader of the German People's party, which is supported by Herr Stinnes and other industrialists, has been charged with the formation of a Cabinet.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Following the proclamation of the general strike, a section of municipal workers has come out and consequently the gas and eletricity supply is cut off in parts of Berlin.

Riots and strikes are reported in many parts of the country. Thirteen persons were killed and many wounded in a collision between police and demonstrators near Breslau. Three persons were killed and forty wounded at Hanover where the crowd plundered the shops. All the mines and factories are idle at Stassfurth in Saxony where a workman was killed in a fight between strikers and Nationalists. Food shops were looted at Frankhausen.

The movement is spreading to the occupied zone. Communists at Ratthausen near Geisenkirchen erected a gallows from which they swung dummies representing Herren Cuno and Stinnes and others. The police thrice removed these gallows which were thrice re-erected. A fight ensued in which five demonstrators and one policeman were killed and ten wounded.

Colyn, in spite of his intention to carry out the Naval Bill, will propose drastic economic measures, involving an estimated saving of 100,000,000 guilders. It is expected that the State Budget for 1924 will show a deficit of 140,000,000 guilders. It is understood that M. Colyn will reduce the salaries of State functionaries and railwaymen by 15 percent. He will also lengthen the legal working day and economise in all branches of social insurance work.

YOUNG WOMAN ON TRIAL FOR ALLEGED THEFT

Case Continued In British Court This Morning

Further testimony in the charge that Frances Mary Trevor-Smith of 35 Connaught Road stole jewelry valued at Tls. 800 from Carmen Kupsch on October 31 of last year, was heard in the British Police Court yesterday afternoon, after which the case was continued until this morning at 10 o'clock.

The court room was crowded for the hearing and it is probable that another throng of curious onlookers will attend this morning's session as the trial of a young woman for theft in Shanghai is a rare sight for the morbidly curious.

At yesterday's session Detective Sergeant Douglass stated that after he had arrested Miss Smith he found a brass armlet, which she stated was a present from a Mr. Howard. She was wearing other jewelry at the time, he testified.

Under cross-examination Detective Tinkler said that Miss Smith had denied the charge and said the girl had been very ungrateful in bringing the charge after all she had done for her.

The next witness called was Det. Inspector Reeves who stated that on January 5, he interviewed Miss Carmen Kupsch and later Miss Trevor-Smith in her private office at the Telephone Company. Witness asked her whether she had retained any of the jewellery belonging to Miss Kupsch. Defendant replied "I would not rob these poor orphans with whom I have had a lot to put up. The jewellery you mention was locked up by me in the box, and I handed the keys to Carmen Kupsch. If the jewellery has been stolen from them it has been stolen from them while it was in the possession of Mrs. Guignard because I saw the box on the verandah for two weeks after it was removed from the house."

Witness then told defendant that that was impossible, and that if she liked to return the jewellery nothing more would be said about it. Witness then got rather indignant and she said, "I suppose you think I have sold the jewellery and have bought a fur coat, as a matter of fact the fur coat was given me by a Shanghai gentleman." Witness said that she mentioned his name.

Continuing, witness said that defendant added "those children have cost me several hundreds of dollars damages for expenses and damages to the house. I took their gramophone in payment and sold it for Taels 68, with their permission: We are not hard up in our house. My father sends Taels 250 a quarter from England and I am engaged to be

BRITAIN CALLS RUHR OCCUPATION ILLEGAL, SHARPLY WARNS PARIS; ASKS DEBT PAYMENT

Reply To French And Belgian Notes "Speaks Out" With Great Frankness; Demands That Germany's Liability Be Fixed; Says France's Debt "Cannot Be Honorably Repudiated," And Strongly Hints At Separate Action

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 12.—The silence maintained by the British Government with regard to its policy since the French entered the Ruhr in January was broken tonight when the Foreign Office issued the reply to the French and Belgian Notes, which the Cabinet approved last week, together with previous correspondence with the Allied Governments.

The Note expresses great disappointment with the French and Belgian Notes which give the painful impression that Britain's cooperation is unwelcome except on the ground of complete adhesion to the French and Belgian views.

It maintains that the occupation of the Ruhr is not authorised by the Treaty of Versailles, but is willing that the point should be submitted to arbitration. The British Government considers that continuance of the present position is fraught with the gravest economic and political risks, and that it is most urgent to fix Germany's liability at a reasonable figure.

When this is done the Government is ready to deal generously with the Allies' debts to Britain. The Note says that Britain is ready to limit her demands for payment by the Allies and Germany to a sum approximating 14,200,000,000 gold marks, which represents the value of the funded British debt to the United States.

The Note says that, while Britain is ready to join in advising the German Government to withdraw without delay the ordinances and decrees which have organised and promoted passive resistance, she cannot subscribe to the thesis that passive resistance must cease unconditionally because it is contrary to the Treaty of Versailles.

The British Government declares that the French debt to Britain cannot honorably be repudiated and payment of interest should be commenced immediately the sterling-franc exchange becomes reasonably stable.

The note concludes by expressing the hope that the French and Belgian Governments will accept the reasonable British position and expressing reluctance to contemplate the possibility that separate action may be required to hasten a settlement which cannot be much longer delayed without the gravest consequences to the recovery of trade and the peace of the world.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 12.—The British Note, which is signed by Marquess Curzon and is 8,000 words long, opens by expressing sincere disappointment with the French and Belgian replies of July 30 to the identic Notes of July 20, which accompanied the draft of a joint Allied answer to the German Memorandum of June 7 that represented the earnest effort of His Majesty's Government to indicate a practical way of arriving as promptly as possible at a final settlement of the reparations question.

It acknowledges the courteous tone of the replies, and trusts that the comments on them will be received in the friendly spirit in which they are offered. The reply seems to be all the more necessary since in the desire to avoid a controversy at a critical phase the Government refrained from replying to the French and Belgian observations a month ago upon the so-called questionnaire. Sooner than embark on a controversy, His Majesty's Government preferred at that time to submit a definite plan of action, proposing an inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay to be conducted within the framework of the Treaty Versailles and that the German Government should be called upon to withdraw the orders enjoining passive resistance.

"It is difficult to think how greater consideration could have been shown to the French and Belgian point of view. The reception, however, accorded this proposal by the French and Belgian Notes of July 30 leaves His Majesty's Government with the painful impression that neither are their suggestions welcomed by their Allies nor is their offered co-operation held to merit consideration except on condition that no departure shall be made in any one particular from whatever France and Belgium declare to be their over-riding views and decisions".

The Belgian reply appears at first sight less uncompromising than the French, but closer examination shows that the attitude of both for all practical purposes is identical. Hence His Majesty's Government deal with the two replies in a single answer. In neither reply is there any allusion whatsoever to the proposed reply to the German memorandum.

The Belgian Government, indeed, still remain in favor of the principle of a joint reply, but the French Government pass the proposal in compete silence. Yet this was the main object to which in the desire for the maintenance of Allied unity His Majesty's Government devoted their efforts.

The omission is hardly compensated by the arguments and inquiries holding out the prospect of an indefinitely spun out controversy, while the fundamental principles are only mentioned to declare that they do not admit of discussion. The Belgian reply does not reject as categorically as the French does the proposal for a fresh investigation of Germany's capacity to pay, but Belgian consent to such an inquiry is made conditional on the obtaining for France and Belgium of far-reaching pecuniary advantages at the expense of the Allies, notably of Britain. Such a suggestion reveals a palpable misconception of the situation.

While the Belgian Note does not indicate a precise claim, official and semi-official pronouncements of French and Belgian Ministers show that France insists on a minimum payment of 26,000,000,000 gold marks over the amount required to meet her debts to Britain and the United States, and Belgium demands a minimum of 5,000,000,000 gold marks, for which they ask further priority. Belgium has already received a disproportionate share of the reparations payments besides being entirely relieved from war debts.

France, when counting to receive 34,000,000,000 gold marks from Germany, must balance this amount against her debt of 12,000,000,000 to Britain and 15,000,000,000 to the United States which will leave France a balance of 7,000,000,000. Therefore her present demand, including the cancellation of debts, is three or four times larger than her share under existing agreements.

The Belgian request for priority for the restoration of devastated areas is not justified by the terms of the Armistice or the Peace Treaty. It is difficult to conceive what argument can be adduced to support it. "Sunk ships and cargoes may not shock the eye like ruined villages, but they represent equally heavy losses of national wealth."

The Note refuses to consent to the revision of the Spa percentages. It is impossible to ignore the position of Britain. Apart from war damages, Britain has spent £400,000,000 to relieve unemployment after the Armistice. Alone among the Allies, she is paying interest on war debts. Alone she has been deprived in the Allied interest of foreign securities estimated at £700,000,000 to £800,000,000. After recalling Britain's January offer, the Note declares that it is inequitable and impossible to ask the British taxpayer for further sacrifices.

The Note adheres to the opinion that Germany's capacity to pay should be investigated by impartial experts who, of the French and Belgians insist, might act in an advisory capacity only. It declares that the French and Belgian insistence on the special qualification of the Reparations Commission cannot be sustained because the Commission without an American representative would become in practice an instrument of French and Belgian policy alone.

The French and Belgian replies are a challenge to the British contention that it is to the best interest of the Allies to secure the German Government's acceptance of any reparations figure fixed, but His Majesty's Government are not convinced that a voluntary German engagement to accept the conclusion of experts should be regarded as valueless.

The Note recalls the offer to join in advising Germany to withdraw the ordinances promoting passive resistance, but says that the Government cannot subscribe to the thesis that passive resistance must cease unconditionally because it is contrary to the Treaty of Versailles, adding that the highest legal authorities in Britain support the German contention that the occupation of the Ruhr does not fall within the clause of the Treaty to which France and Belgium appeal. His Majesty's Government have never concealed their view that the French and Belgian action is not a sanction authorised by the Treaty, but would be willing that this should to be referred to the International Court of Justice at the Hague or other suitable arbitration.

The British Government repudiate the French charge of inconsistency in refusing to acknowledge the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr when they have twice previously joined in the presentation of ultimata threatening occupation, and have actually participated in the occupation of Duesseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort. The Note says that such action was not in pursuance of the reparations clauses, but on account of Germany's failure to perform her Treaty obligations. If His Majesty's Government have hitherto abstained from formally contesting the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr, it is solely due to the desire to avoid needlessly embarrassing the Allies.

This should not be made a reproach now. His Majesty's Government would not even now have taken up the question of legality if they had not been challenged. The French Government now declare that the object of entering the Ruhr was not reparations but the breaking of Germany's resistance and the creation of a will to pay, but a will to pay is useless without the power and the power to pay is likely to be extinguished altogether by continuation of the stranglehold on the most important center of German industries.

Though His Majesty's Government are in no way satisfied with what Germany has paid respecting reparations and the cost of the Armies of Occupation more than twice the amount exacted from France in 1871, and also considerable sums in connection with clearing offices, etc.

The French Government are mistaken in attributing to His Majesty's Government the suggestion that, simultaneously with the advice that Germany should abandon passive resistance, the Ruhr must be made to return to normal production. The suggestion in the British Note of July 20 was that proposals should be made for the restoration of the Ruhr to conditions enabling it to become an area of fruitful production instead of international strife. His Majesty's Government are surprised and disappointed at the French and Belgian difficulty in agreeing to so reasonable and advantageous a proceeding.

The Note points out that the French and Belgian announcements with regard to evacuating only in accordance with payments can only be interpreted as an intention to remain in occupation for at least thirty-six years, while the time may be extended indefinitely if not in perpetuity. Such a situation, of which the political, quite apart from the economic, consequences could only be described as disastrous, cannot but be viewed with the greatest concern. It would vividly conjure up the danger of international relations being affected in a manner threatening, in the words of the Covenant of the League of Nations, "to disturb international peace." The Government cannot believe that the French and Belgian Governments will be able to reconcile the opinion of the world to the indefinite maintenance of so perilous a situation.

The French Government question the legality and apparently the propriety of the British suggestion of July 20 to open an inter-Allied discussion with a view to a general and final financial settlement, and ask whether the discussions include inter-Allied debts. His Majesty's Government gladly take the opportunity to explain their attitude on which they enclose a separate memorandum. Britain is ready, subject to the just claims of other parts of the Empire, to limit her demands for payment by the Allies and Germany together to a net sum approximating 14,200,000,000 gold marks, which represents the present value of the funded British debt to the United States. The concessions which His Majesty's Government may be able to offer in respect of inter-Allied debts must largely depend on the percentage which they are able to recover from Germany. They can only be granted in substantive form when a general reparation settlement, for which Britain is pressing, has been agreed upon and in such that Britain's share of the payments can be regarded as an asset of real financial value. The first step must be the fixation of the maximum reasonably recoverable from Germany, accompanied by arrangements ensuring the effective re-establishment of Germany's finances and credits on a sound basis, and the guaranteeing of punctual payment of the German debt by a system of control, freed from the economically unsound impediments inherent in the occupation of the Ruhr.

The Belgian Government warmly welcomed the British offer to discuss sympathetically the question of security, but the French Government remarked that this was nothing to do with the Ruhr, postponing the discussion to an unnamed future date. His Majesty's Government are not prepared to enter into any arrangement respecting the territorial security of Belgium apart from a similar arrangement with regard to France, and in view of the declared indifference of the French Government no useful purpose can be served by pursuing the matter.

The Note, summing up, reiterates the Government's determination that Germany shall pay to the maximum of her capacity, but to ask more would only destroy German assets. The Government regards as doomed to failure the methods of the French and Belgian Governments. The British policy, stated by Mr. Bonar Law in January, has not changed. It means that Britain is prepared to waive in the interest of a general settlement A very large part of the amount for which the British tax-payer holds the due obligations of the Allied Governments.

Britain Calls Ruhr Occupation Illegal

In conclusion the Note expresses the hope that the French and Belgian Governments will accept the reasonable British position and expresses reluctance to contemplate the possibility that separate action may be required to hasten a settlement which cannot be much longer delayed without the gravest consequences to the recovery of trade and the peace of the world.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 12.—The memorandum on inter-Allied debts, appended to the British Note, explains that Britain's offer means that she is content to forego her rights to all reparations and to treat her share of the German payments as reimbursement of the Allied debts to her. The total amount she asks from the Allies and Germany together is less that the amount of the Allied debts.

The Government greatly fear that persistence in the French policy will make the prospects of settlement remote. The Memorandum says that, if the Allies agree on the maximum recoverable from Germany, Britain is prepared to write down the Allied debts to an amount representing the difference between the British share of the revised German obligation and the British debt of 14,000,000,000 gold marks to the United States, and would even consider accepting payment in the form of new German obligations on the principles enunciated by Mr. Bonar Law in January.

The Government cannot, however, conceal from France that the latter suggestion is less attractive now that Germany's financial prospects have deteriorated in consequence of the unwise French and Belgian policy. The willingness of His Majesty's Government to discuss mitigation of the French debt must not be interpreted as waiving these rights as creditors. It is inadmissible that a French Treasury bill to the British Government is less binding than a similar bill to a private investor.

There was no suggestion when the loans were made that repayment was dependent on recoveries from Germany. The bills were subject to renewal for a limited period after the war with the clear intention that they should be redeemed out of French Government loans on the London market.

While His Majesty's Government by continuing to renew the bills beyond the contract period tacitly recognised that the time had not arrived to carry out the intention, it must be clearly understood that, failing a new agreement, its carrying out remains an obligation on the French Government which cannot honorably be repudiated, and in the mean time the present practice of adding the interest to the capital cannot be indefinitely continued and the commencement of payment of at least a part of the interest should be made immediate. By the sterling franc exchange becomes measurably stable.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Aug. 13.—General recognition that the White Paper on reparations and the Ruhr ranks as one of the most memorable State documents of modern times led the newspapers to devote columns of space to the reproduction of its contents. The latest British Note is, however, the central object of attention and there is every reason to conclude from the press comments that the Government's aim in deciding on publication to rally opinion to its way of thinking has been fully achieved. Much satisfaction is manifested by the fact that the British Government has spoken its mind clearly, forcibly and without reserve after a display of remarkable patience and continual effort to re-establish united Allied action. The Note is described as essentially pro-British, this being the allusion to the recent exhortation of Mr. Stanley Baldwin who deprecated the idea that people were being either pro-French or pro-German in viewing current European problems.

The Liberal organs are among the warmest supporters of the Note. The Westminster Gazette assuming that the Government has clearly in mind the kind of separate action indicated by the Note, says that "we have come to the point where there can be no turning back on our part." The Daily News says the Englishmen would never dream of using the tone employed towards France if they have not been driven to it by France's persistent indifference to British interests.

The Times, unlike a couple of contemporaries who express the opinion that the British Government is unjustified in contesting the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr at this late moment, thinks that the Note shows that the French arguments for occupation are largely based on unwarranted assumptions and surmises, in view of the disorders in Germany, the possibility of the whole problem of reparations becoming obsolete.

The Daily Telegraph believes that public opinion here and in the Dominions emphatically endorse the Note.

The Daily Herald thinks that M. Poincare will perhaps admit the reasonableness of Mr. Baldwin's views more quickly if he knew that the Premier in them has the nation behind him.

The Morning Post adopts a sober tone being apparently undesirous to embarrass a Conservative Premier although it discerns an expected bias in favor of Germany in the Note and is concerned over the probable French irritation at the contents. The Daily Mail alone maintains a strong Francophile front and attacks the Government hip and thigh and accuses it of being out of touch with national opinion. The journal epithetises the Note as bad and stupid.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 13.—The newspapers express the opinion that the British Note is lacking in logic and justice and is not likely to promote a reparations solution.

The Echo de Paris, says that the Note is the preface to a new policy and that the British Government has abandoned the path in which she has walked for 2½ years. The journal appeals to international opinion and says that France will not change her attitude in the face of this crisis.

The Matin declares that the Note is a marvel of confusion and contradiction and shows the degree, hitherto unsuspected, of the state of moral disintegration into which the British leaders have fallen. The journal declares that no French Government will accept the judgment of any tribunal whatsoever.

The Figaro says that our friends are sufficiently aware of the French point of view which has not changed to guess the nature of the French reply.

The Gaulois says that the Note is an unexpected encouragement to German resistance.

The Oeuvre declares that the Note proclaims a monstrous principle of priority for bankers over victims. Puerile, unworthy and deplorable are among the adjectives used by the Journal which says that the Note is a scandalous attempt to make the victims of fraud pay up.

(Reuter's Service)

Brussels, August 13.—The Etoile Belge says that the British Note leaves the door open for further negotiation and makes no practical suggestion hence the French and Belgian Governments will probably merely acknowledge it. The Journal declares that fresh conversations are unlikely before the end of the Parliamentary recess.

World's Largest Bomber Nears Completion

THE greatest bombing airplane the world has ever seen has been almost completed at Wilbur Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, and is undergoing her ground tests, preliminary to flying. Lieutenants Harold R. Harris and Leigh Wade, with a crew of ten men, will man the ship. It has a wing spread of 120 feet, a fuselage of 65 feet and a gasoline tank capable of carrying 2,120 gallons. It mounts seven machine guns and will carry 12,000 pounds of bombs. The War Department is planning even larger machines. The Barling, as it is called, weighs 20 tons, and two big tractors are necessary to haul it out of its hanger. It is powered with six 450-horsepower Liberty engines.

"The Mine With The Iron Door"

The Mine With The Iron Door by Harold Bell Wright. Chinese-American Book Store.

This is another Harold Bell Wright book. As the blurb on the book cover recitesth it is a romance of adventure. The scene is laid in what is peculiarly the Harold Bell Wright country, the Catalina Mountains of Arizona. Strange stories drift about that region, and thither many men have come—Spaniards, explorers, priests, Indians, cattlemen and adventurers from every land—who have mounted its heights, up and up under the wide skies, over the vast deserts, upon the wild mountains, to the mighty Canyon of Gold. Today men still hear of the famous lost mine, "the mine with the iron door."

In the usual Harold Bell Wright style a Harold Bell Wright hero wanders into this canyon just as the round ball of fire called the sun is sinking into the mountain trails. The only eye that sees him is that of an Indian silhouetted against the sky. This scene, with the lonely figures in the majestic open, preludes the story of Harold Bell Wright heroism, of love, of human hearts, of glorious adventure. . . Bill Hart translated to the printed page.

It would be a crime to give the story away, and, anyway you'll get it as soon as you've read a few chapters. All that needs to be said is that if you like Harold Bell Wright you'll like "The Mine With The Iron Door."

Mr. Chang has served in various positions in previous cabinets and is a man widely versed in political affairs. It has been hinted that during the past week he has been making the rounds of his friends, sounding them out on his candidacy, and trying to discover whether or not it will be possible for him to overcome the known opposition in parliament. Rumor has even gone so far as to report that during the past ten days he has been successful in raising sums variously quoted at $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 in order to assist him to defray the most pressing obligations of the government in the event that he is appointed Minister of Finance.

HONGKONG BANK THIEF IS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

A long series of thefts at the new Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation building are believed to have been brought to a conclusion with the arrest on Saturday of a Chinese carpenter who was caught in the act of removing a brass window fastener and was subsequently found to have three more of the fixtures tied to his waistband.

The first report of missing articles was made to the police on August 7, when Mr. Archer, of Messrs. Trollope & Colls, informed the authorities that 42 imported brass window catches had been removed from the premises. On the 9th four more were found gone and under the direction of Detective Sub-Inspector Hunter, of Central Station, plans were formulated which resulted in the arrest of the thief, shortly after noon on Saturday. The man confessed and took the police to the place where he had disposed of the loot. He said that he had received 320 cents for the lot.

The carpenter was sentenced to 3 months' imprisonment by Assessor Mead and Magistrate Yui of the Mixed Court yesterday and the dealer, located in Peking Road, who received the stolen property, was fined $75.

married. I would not steal these things."

Witness then said that he left defendant, and on June 12 he received a report of the larceny of two gold bags. The description of the two gold bags answered the description given by complainant, except the smaller one, which was less by one inch.

Witness gave evidence regarding what transpired after he had received the first complaint of the loss of the jewellery. He did not know whether the police had received previous complaints of articles having been stolen from the house of the late Mrs. Kupsch or the children.

In answer to his Worship, witness stated that the reason he waited for the return of the children before having the warrant issued was that the police could not make the charge without the complainant.

Carmen Kupsch, aged 17 was then put into the box. She said that she was a Roman Catholic. Her father died in 1916, and her mother last September. She came to 28 Jessfield Road, together with her sister and brother. The next day she stayed with Miss Trevor-Smith, whom she had known for two years. She stayed with her for a month and a half.

On Saturday and on Sunday nights the theater was full "to the lid" when Nicola gave a first rate entertainment.

Disorder Marks Irish Elections

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 12.—The opening of the Free State Government candidates election campaign with a demonstration on College Green in Dublin today was attended by considerable disorder. President Cosgrave and other Ministers were subjected to constant interruptions from groups of female Republicans distributed over the crowd, who kept up a continuous screaming and yelling. An attempt by the women to rush the platform was frustrated.

The candidates for the elections include the Republicans, Countess Markievicz and Miss Mary McSwiney, and the Free Stater, Mrs. Powell, sister of the late Mr. Michael Collins.

French Wireless—News And Views

Paris, Aug. 12.—Inaugurating the memorial to the Dead at Marville (Meuse) Premier Poincare recalled the extortions and odious treatment inflicted on the inhabitants, especially women and young girls.

Germany in order to obscure her own misdeeds is impudently and loudly complaining of the pacific occupation of the Ruhr. Herr Cuno pronounces arrogant threats in the Reichstag. Herr Cuno would not speak so if the Allies would prescribe unanimously to Germany to cease her revolt.

But whatever Herr Cuno says it will not affect the Franco-Belgian policy. Germany alone will be the victim of voluntary blindness. The continual falling of the mark will lead her to a catastrophe. If Herr Cuno thinks that Germany can tear the treaty, if he thinks that we would quit the Ruhr without receiving our due, he is mistaken.

We are sure of our right. As on the eve of the overthrow of 1918, Germany tries to put us on the wrong scent.

M. Poincare concluded: "It will be sufficient to us not to slacken in order to have the last word. The whole nation has a steady desire to win the peace as she won the war. Not only by the bravery of the Allied armies but by the will of the nation we will win the peace. The Dead demand that their Sacrifice shall not have been vain.

Boyle-White Bout To Be Big Feature Of Saturday's Show At The Old Carlton

The much heralded Boyle-White bout is to be staged next Saturday night at the Old Carlton in Ningpo Road, under the auspices of the newly formed Shanghai Athletic association promoted by Prof. Billy Bellew.

Boyle and White met some weeks ago at the Stadium on Great Western Road in what was conceded to be the best boxing bout ever held there, despite the fact that both boys had been defeated previously. This fight was distinguished by Nick's recuperative powers, and by his return to "normalcy" after being "knocked out" several times.

Nick and Charlie have met several times in the ring, but neither has won a clear verdict. Saturday night both boys will strive to settle the question of supremacy once and for all, and for that reason boxing fans are assured a contest that will be filled with action from the first tap of the gong.

Another bout that promises to enliven the proceedings will be the match between Babe Siemssen and John Johannsen, both local amateurs. Babe Siemssen, it is acknowledged on all sides, is one of the best boxers ever developed in Shanghai and if he were in the professional class some of the lightweight aspirants for championship honors would find themselves up against it for fair. The Babe, however, prefers to retain his amateur status for which reason he and Johannsen will battle for a cup offered by Prof. Bellew.

Besides the two ten round bouts a semi-final of six rounds will be between young Kyko and Kid Frisco. Among the preliminaries to be staged will be a bout between Battling Sweeney and Young Jamito and another between Kid Willie and Joe Ching.

Seats for the affair on sale at Moutrie's.

Criqui, French Champ, Owes Success To Manager

The success of Jack Dempsey has been traced more than once to his manager, Jack Kearns. The story of how Kearns took a raw, clumsy-looking fighter, who came to him some six years ago in San Francisco, and turned him into a formidable boxer has been told more than once.

Dempsey himself will say that "Doc" did it. It was Kearns who strapped Dempsey's right hand to his side, thus forcing him to use his left, until its constant employment developed it into a wicked weapon. And it was the development of this left hand that brought Dempsey out of the pork and beans class, the sort of fighter who was satisfied to run even with and sometimes second to, the Willie Meehans and others of his kind, into a world's championship.

Needless to say, it was Kearns—no one else—who was daring enough to ask for $300,000 for his man's end of a championship purse, and lucky enough to get it.

What Kearns has meant to Dempsey is an old story. Here's one of another manager, perhaps not nearly as well known as Jack Kearns, but a manager, nevertheless, whose slogan, "nothing but champions," has brought him fame in Europe, more or less attention in this country, and a possibility of plenty more, now that his star performer Eugene Criqui, of France, has won Kilbane's crown. The manager is robert Eudeline.

The first thing one notices about Robert Eudeline is that he does not wear a hat. He says he discarded the hat years ago, for two reasons. One was that he used to be subject to colds in the head, and he's never had one since he threw his hat away. The other is that it is good for the growth of hair. As Eudeline is possessor of a noticeable bald spot, he is either the greatest optimist in the world or reason number two will have to be ruled off.

As Eudeline discarded his hat for health reasons, so did he enter the boxing game. Educated above the average fight manager, and that goes for managers in any country in which the game is flourishing, Eudeline found, when his health started to fail him, that by going in her sport promotion he could keep in the open air a good deal of the time.

Previous acquaintance with English soldiery had interested him in boxing and he turned as a natural consequence to the ring for his sport activity. He had some new ideas about training and conditioning his men. He took them away from the stuffy gymnasiums and out into the openair, into the country and away from the crowded cities, and he found that his ideas were sound ones. His boxers were consistent winners. He soon gained the title "Manager of Champions." He has had and still has several champions of various classes. It is related that on the night that one of his boxers lost the lightweight title of France another one of the "stable" gained a middleweight crown.

Eudeline is of a vastly different type from Francois Deschamps, the manager of Georges Carpentier. Where Deschamps kept a veil of secrecy about his man's doings at Manhasset, Eudeline extended a welcome to all who cared to see his man, Criqui, in training or at any other time. The ring in which the French featherweight did his training was pitched just behind the cottage at Manhasset and could easily be seen from the street outside.

There were no fences, no impassable barriers for the curious passers by. Eudeline and Criqui had nothing to conceal. They are frank to say that they think they have the goods to deliver. They wanted as many potential "contomers" to know it as possible. Criqui, unlike Carpentier, did not have to be "built up," for his world's championship fight.

If he had any weaknesses he wanted open criticism of them, and he was not afraid to have the experts see him in action day in and day out. That, too, is as much a part of the Eudeline "nothing-but-champions" system, as the two days rest before a fight that he invariably prescribes and insists upon.

Eudeline talks freely, through an interpreter, and rapidly. He talks in English too, but much more slowly. He has shown an amazing ability to understand English spoken to him, and frequently catches up in a conversation to say a word or two.

He has made a thorough study of boxing conditions not only in France, but throughout Europe. He says that the boxers over there have taken to the sport with such enthusiasm of late that it is not a silly prediction to say that in ten years many of the boxing championships will be in the hands of Europeans.

"The war, that took away the flower of our youth, was the greatest setback our boxing has ever had," he says. "But we are slowly recovering from that. And you must realise, too, that boxing, save in England, is a comparatively new sport to Europeans. France did not take it up seriously until about fifteen years ago. In fact, boxing today is not authorised in France, but merely tolerated.

"Belgium, I believe, had boxing not more than a year before the war. Italy is just talking it up. But look at the reception the game gets. That, to me, is sufficient ground for belief that in European rings will be found many a future world's champion."

Eudeline naturally thinks France will be the European leader in boxing. He looks for his country to take the play away from England, and asserts that even now, English boxing critics are sounding a warning to their men to stir themselves.

A Responsibility of the Military Governors and other Provincial or local authorities:

The final protocol for the settlement of the disturbances of 1900 (Article X and Annex 16) declares that all the Governors General, Governors and provincial or local officials are bound to insure in the most efficacious way the protection of foreigners and are responsible for the maintenance of order in the event of new anti-foreign disturbances within the limits of their districts.

It expressly prescribes the following penalties for those who should fail in this duty.

If, owing to indeference, or rather of voluntary tolerance, great calamities take place, or if treaties should be violated and no immediate steps taken to make reparation or inflict punishment, the Governors-General, Governors, and the provincial or local officials responsible will be removed and shall not be reappointed to other office in other provinces, or hope to be reinstated or receive any further honors.

Brigandage having become a grave menace to the lives, property and rights of foreigners in China, the Diplomatic Body will keep itself accurately informed with regard to this state of unrest and for that purpose it has decided on the despatch in case of need of its own representatives into the provinces infested by the brigands in order to examine and report upon the local situation. When it appears to the Diplomatic Body that a military Governor or officer commanding troops or that a provincial or local official has failed or is failing in his duty of providing protection for foreigners in conformity with the clauses of the Protocol of 1901 above mentioned, the Diplomatic Body will demand the immediate imposition on the offender of the penalities prescribed therein without prejudice to such additional punishments, fines, etc., as the circumstances may call for.

The Diplomatic Body moreover reserves the right to order the exclusion of these officers or officials from the protection of the foreign concessions or settlements in the treaty ports.

B.—Measures for protecting the railways.

The Lincheng incident has clearly shown the danger which foreign travellers at present run on the Tientsin-Pukow Line, which is one of the principal means of communication in China and on the Chinese railways generally.

From the inquiries which the Diplomatic Body undertook and from the information which it has collected, particularly from the International Military Commission, which it despatched to Lincheng, it transpires that the present system of protection of the Chinese railways is insufficient to insure in an efficient manner the protection of the lines.

The Diplomatic Body considers that reforms are necessary and that it is its duty to aid the Chinese Government to carry these out, by collaborating with them in the task.

The reforms which the Diplomatic Body has in view would consist in the reorganisation of the forces of the Special Chinese police who would be placed under the supervision of foreign officers and entrusted with the protection of the Chinese railways.

The Diplomatic Body reserves the right, after a more elaborate study of the question, of presenting as soon as possible to the Chinese Government the scheme which it will have adopted.

III—SANCTIONS

The Diplomatic Body requires from the Chinese Government the punishment of those civil or military officials and employees of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway whose complicity with the bandits may be established or whose conduct may be found to have facilitated the crime either by negligence or lack of foresight before, or by inactivity during, the incident or whose attitude have been found to have contributed to the prolongation of the detention of the foreign prisoners.

Without entering into the details of all the prosecutions to be undertaken in connection with the Lincheng incident, the Diplomatic Body, after having made a careful study of the matter by means of international commissions to the civil and military and by other methods, finds it necessary to request the Chinese Government to inflict upon a certain number of persons the punishments which it has determined. The demands of the Diplomatic Body are as follows:

1. That General T'ien Chung-yu, Military Governor of Shantung who, as military Governor of Shantung, was directly and wholly responsible for the maintenance of order and the protection of foreigners in his province, and, as Commander-in-Chief of all the troops in his province, was responsible for the payment, discipline and conduct of his troops, should be summarily dismissed from his present duties, that he shall never henceforth be entrusted with any official duty or mission on Chinese territory and that he should henceforth receive no new honor.

2. That General Ho Feng-yu, Defence Commissioner at Yenchowfu and Commander of the 6th Mixed Brigade of Shantung, who, as Defence Commissioner at Yenchowfu, had responsibilities in Southern Shantung similar to those of General Tien for the entire province and who after General Tien, was responsible for the continuation of brigandage in southern Shantung shall be dismissed from his duties and shall never again be appointed to any military command whatsoever.

3. That General Chang Wen-t'ang, Commander of the Tientsin-Pukow railway police, responsible for the discipline and conduct of the police along the permanent way and on the trains of the said railway, shall be dismissed from his duties and shall never again be entrusted with any police duty on railways.

4. That Chao Te-chao, the officer in command of the guard on the train which was attacked on May 6, responsible for the defence of the train, who was not in uniform at the time of the attack and who took no action and allowed himself to be captured by the bandits, should be dismissed from his duties and shall never again be employed in a police capacity.

In conformity with the provisions of the last paragraph of Article II-A above, the Diplomatic Body reserves the right to themselves to order the exclusion of these four officers from the protection of the foreign concessions and settlements in the Treaty Ports. The punishment of certain officers, however, does not adequately satisfy the just claims of the Diplomatic Body.

The attack by brigands on the train from Pukow to Peking, the capture of foreign travellers, the length of their captivity, the measures which had to be resorted to obtain their release, have proved to the world that foreigners do not enjoy in China the guarantees of safety to which they are entitled. The actual sanction of the Lincheng incident should be found in a strict respect by the Chinese Government and all authorities in China for the rights of foreigners and for the treaties in force.

The Diplomatic Body has firmly determined to guard closely and to maintain by all measures in its power the defense of these rights and the application of those treaties which were solemnly confirmed at the time of the final establishment of the Republic of China, by the declaration communicated to the Legations on October 6, 1913, prior to the publication on the 10th of the same month.

BRIGANDAGE

Before terminating this Note, the Diplomatic Corps draws the attention of the Chinese Government to brigandage in China which in its present state constitutes a grave danger for the whole country as well as for the rights and interests of foreigners. The Diplomatic Body has received admissions that the Chinese Government were aware of the existence and recent development of brigandage in China in the official notifications addressed by the latter to the members of the Diplomatic Body respecting the insecurity of certain districts from which the Waichiaopu desired on that account to exclude foreigners from those districts.

The Chinese Government has now recently been warned that these notifications will only be considered as valid for a limited period and the Diplomatic Body hereby decares that henceforth they will consider these notifications as being official recognitions on the part of the Chinese Government of the existence of brigandage in the districts mentioned and all renewals of the said notifications after the fixed time limit as being official admission on the part of the Chinese Government of their failure to suppress the brigandage in these same districts where they had denied its existence.

The Diplomatic Body aims at suppression of brigandage in China because brigandage threatens the rights and interests of the foreigners under their care. But the Chinese no less than the foreigners suffer from the evils of brigandage and when the Diplomatic Corps asks that by the suppression of brigandage foreigners should be guaranteed security in China it is in fact asking that the Chinese should also be guaranteed security in their own country.

The recent development of brigandage with its evil consequences is not always caused by reason of the lack of military forces: there are at the present time in China more soldiers under arms than in any other country in the world. But these soldiers do not suppress the brigandage either because, not being paid, they refuse to make any efforts and even fraternise with the bandits, or, as is generally the case, because the best of them are otherwise employed. As long as the Chinese Government allows the best disciplined troops in China to devote themselves to those civil wars which perpetually afflict one part or another of this great country the national or provincial armies will be diverted from their true task. They will more than anyone else minister to the misery and sufferings of the Chinese people instead of acting as their defenders against the outrages and depredations of the bandits.

If the Government of China continues to authorise or to tolerate these abuses, if they do not set themselves resolutely to repress the brigandage which threatens the rights and interests of foreigners in China, the Diplomatic Body will be obliged to consider what further steps should be taken to protect the lives, the property, the rights and interests of foreigners in a country which, although it enjoys the rights and privileges accorded to members of the great family of nations, has shown itself incapable of fulfilling even the most fundamental of the duties which are inseparably connected with the rights and privileges of membership.

The Diplomatic Body desires the Chinese Government to understand its intention to obtain in reparation for the Lincheng incident the indemnities, guarantees and sanctions enumerated above.

Accept, Your Excellency, etc., etc.

200 ENROLLED FOR NANKING SUMMER SCHOOL

45 Graduate In Agriculture—Memorial Services For Harding

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, Aug. 11.—The special one year agriculture course, inaugurated last fall by the College of Agriculture and Forestry here has 45 students who will graduate this summer. This fall only 40 students will be admitted. This is the time for writing applications, as the fall term will be open on September 10th. Besides giving a wide range of heavy study, a special emphasis is placed upon gaining skill in practice by arranging all class-room work in the forenoon and requiring, during each afternoon, field, garden, or nursery operations corresponding to the lessons studied. The object of the one year course is primarily to so train rural teachers and extension workers that they will be able to meet the particular problems in their own localities, and become active community leaders. Secondarily it is intended to develop farm foremen, experiment station managers, operators of pure seed farms, nursery managers, etc.

For the third time, the Summer School of the University commenced on July 13, with an enrollment of more than two hundred students including girls. Most of them are school teachers and pastors. All classes are arranged in the forenoon, with the afternoon open for field operations and trips. The students of the Rural Extension class are especially active. They are divided into four groups, each group giving a play. The first two groups have given theirs already; the first one for the idea of improving crops and the second for that of impoving people. The third play which will be given this evening is for the idea of promoting rural organisations. The fundamental purpose of making these plays is to train the extension workers to utilize the play method as a means of promoting extension work. Besides play, every Friday evening there is a moving picture show in the University Sage Chapel. So the students enjoy very much and feel at home. The Summer School will be over by August 21st.

The graduates of the University who are going abroad this Summer are as follows: Tao Yuen-chiao (Chemistry and Soils), Liu Tung-chi (Canning), Chen Shuin-yuin (Veterinary), Mao Young (Farm Crops), Wu Wen-chen (Tsin Hwa Scholarship), Tung Chi-shioh (Commerce), and Yung Chia-yuen (Commerce).

Yesterday morning the Memorial Service for President Harding was held here in the University Sage Chapel by the Chinese officials and foreigners of the city. Military Governor Tsi and Civil Governor Han were both present.

MOTOR THIEVES NOW PART OF LOCAL SCHEME

Shanghai puts forth another claim for classification among the metropolises of the world. Involving the introduction of the automobile thief.

Yesterday morning car No 6867 was stolen from in front of the Royal Cafe. The police were notified and a city-wide search was inaugurated, as a result of which the missing machine was found later in the day in Avenue Foch.

The motor kidnaper in Shanghai labors under the handicap of restricted space in which to exercise his acquisition.

Ichang Tai Wo Cheong Tea Hong

We beg to inform the public that our Hong in Ichang in the Province of Hupeh, China, has been established for over 40 years specially preparing Ichang Black Teas under the two famous chops "Wo Kee" and "Sin Pin" which are well known to all tea merchants abroad as well as in China. We have always been careful to select the finest leaves which give the best taste.

This year the tea is exceedingly good on account of fine weather, and we have prepared 414 chests of "Wo Kee" and 418 chests of "Sin Pin" which were all sold to the American firm of Wisner & Co. and the British firm of Dodwell & Co. In each of these chests there is a ticket bearing our Trade Mark Dragon and Phoenix and the Chinese characters "Tai Wo Cheong Tea Hong."

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

August 13, 1923

Spot bar silver was up ⅛d. and forward 1-16d. in London on Saturday. The New York price advanced to 63 cents and the London-New York cross rate to 457⅛. Our official quotations here today were unchanged from Saturday.

Our market at the opening was steady, became firm in the course of the morning but eased off again slightly later in the day. While some business in Sterling was done at 3-0 13-16 for August, 3-0⅝ for September and 3-0 11-16 for October, there were generally buyers at these rates with sellers at 1-16d. lower.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 70 for near delivery and 69⅞ for forward with buyers ⅛ point higher. There were sellers of Yen at 69⅞ for near delivery and 70 for forward. Banks were quoting 3-1⅝, 71½ and 1265 for Sterling, Gold Dollar and Franc bills respectively.

India bought silver in London on Saturday and the Continent sold, the market closing steady. New York report their market as dull but steady.

NOW IS THE SEASON OF COLIC AND CHILLS

Use Baby's Own Tablets Against These Ills.

Climatic conditions in the Far East are extremely hard on little ones, especially at this time of the year. Sudden changes of temperature, damp heat, the chill which follows hot close days, all tend to weaken and predispose to sudden attacks of illness.

As a safeguard for their children against fever, colic, diarrhœa, croup and chills careful parents should keep Baby's Own Tablets ready in the house. These Tablets also dispel infantile indigestion and constipation, allay teething pains, expel worms, and quickly bring restful sleep in a prefectly natural way. They are guaranteed absolutely pure and harmless.

Of chemists, or post free 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

Funds Gone, Relief Work For Russians Soon To Stop

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Aug. 9.—Major Morgan Palmer, in charge of the American Red Cross Russian Refugee Relief Work in China, states that owing to the exhaustion of funds such work must terminate in the near future.

The Red Cross made an original appropriation from Washington of $25,000 gold about the first of January, and more recently, in reply to the recommendation of Mr. Palmer and the China Central Committee of the American Red Cross (Shanghai) that a further sum of $15,000 gold be appropriated they remitted only $5,000 stating that this sum must be used to terminate the relief work as no further funds were available for this purpose, and expressing the hope that all interested parties would work together to reach some constructive solution for the problem.

In a later cablegram, the Washington Headquarters definitely stated that the American Red Cross may assist in arranging wholly voluntary return of refugees to their native land but must not induce, or press such action.

A similar policy on the part of the British Government was stated in the House of Commons on April 27, when in answer to questions relative to the relief of the remnants of Kolchak's army in North Manchuria, Mr. R. McNeill said that while the Government sympathise with their plight they cannot undertake fresh financial burdens, adding, however, that the Consul at Harbin has been authorised to lend his good offices for the purpose of securing the return home of a portion of the refugees.

WORK FOR REFUGEES

The principal work of the American Red Cross for Russian Refugees has been in Kirin where General Dieterichs and between six and seven thousand of his men took refuge in December and January after the evacuation of Vladivostok. Hospitals for men and women were established, dispensaries and bath houses, together with dining and work rooms for women and children, were opened in the various internment camps, underwear and other clothing was distributed and outbreak of typhus and typhoid were checked.

All this was due to the active and able Committee of the handful of foreign missionaries and Y.M.C.A. workers in Kirin, under the very capable chairmanship of Dr. J. A. Greig, for 34 years a missionary in that city.

Much credit should also be given to the Kirin Provincial Authorities who through all these months have been providing food, lodging, fuel etc. for these thousands of refugees at the expense of many hundred thousand dollars.

The Red Cross has also given extensive relief in Shanghai, under the direct supervision of the Shanghai Committee, while small local relief committees have been organised and supplied with small grants at Sianfu and Langchowfu in Western China to assist the parties of refugees

Crawley Case Up Todoy In Mukden Court

Harbin, August 12.—Judge C. S. Lobingier and officers of the United States Court for China arrived here tonight in a private car that had been provided for the Court. On the trip north a number of receptions along the way were given in Judge Lobingier's honor.

The Harbin term of the United States Court for China is to open tomorrow and a number of important cases are included on the docket for hearing.

The opening hearing will be a charge that has been made by the Chinese authorities against Mr. Paul Crawley, formerly of Shanghai who was arrested at Harbin several weeks ago when it was alleged that he was maintaining a gambling establishment in his restaurant which is called the California cafe.

Mr. Crawley asserts that he refused some time ago to pay the authorities for 'protection' that he did not feel he needed and he declares that by reason of this refusal the present charge has been framed up against him. He will be defended tomorrow by Mr. F. J. Schuhl.

The 8-Hour Day

AMERICAN labor will take another big forward step on Thursday when the Carnegie plant of the United States Steel Corporation will put the 8-hour day into operation. When Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board, and spokesman for the steel industry, announced on July 15 that a start would be made within six weeks of substituting three shifts of 8-hours each for two 12-hour shifts in the steel plants of the nation, it came as the conclusion of a long controversy. It was only so short a time ago as May that the American Iron and Steel Institute, of which Judge Gary is a director and the most influential figure, made its report that the 8-hour day could not become a reality until "a surplus of labor was available." The report was the answer to the late President Harding's advice that the steel industry find some means of ending the 12-hour day.

After an investigation the committee appointed, headed by Judge Gary, defended the 12-hour day as less arduous than the 8-hour day—although how such a brilliant man as Judge Gary could ever made such a statement is still worrying 'our best minds'—and made a vague promise that as soon as "surplus labor" should be available the steel industry would be glad to change. The defense of the 12-hour day by the institute brought a popular outcry from the general public. Civic organisations became interested. The press pointed out that Judge Gary got tired out defending his statement after 45 minutes of talking.

Then the Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches in America, which has often taken a leading part in obtaining better working conditions for American workingmen, and representing 50,000,000 Protestants, Catholics and Jews, delivered a body blow to the 12-hour day.

The steel people were unable to withstand the impact of the aroused public opposition and crumpled from their position. Just how full that collapse was is evidenced by Judge Gary's announcement, and by his further announcement only a few days ago that the first change would be made in the Carnegie plant on August 16.

In his interview with reporters on July 6 last Mr. Gary discussed the promise made by the American Iron and Steel Institute to President Harding to end the twelve-hour day when "there is a surplus of labor available." At that he explained that in order to effect the transfer from twelve to eight hour shifts throughout the industry 60,000 more workmen would be needed.

How much of this huge force is expected to be available for the steel industry by the end of August he would not say. Nor would he give his opinion of the time the change from the twelve to eight hour day would require to be put into effect in all the iron and steel plants.

Of the source of the labor which will be available to the industry within six weeks he would not speak, but his remarks on July 6 are applicable. He had said.

"Men coming from the South, from Mexico, from the Philippines and Canada and from various countries abroad have already made some showing, although the present number of workmen is inadequate."

Later he was asked:

"What is the reason for supposing there will be more labor available in the near future?"

"It is because the workmen are coming," he answered, "from the South, the colored men, the Mexicans from Mexico, the Filipinos and the Canadians, and immigration is increasing a little, I think."

Americans in Shanghai will greet the new changes with approval. They like to see the United States take the lead in humanitarian measures—and there can be no question but what the cutting off of 4 hours work each day will be an enormous benefit to the steel workers. The chief effect of the hour cut in China will be an increase in the price of steel products. The change is expected to be reflected almost immediately in higher prices, all the way from manufacturers to consumers. Judge Gary set the increase at approximately 15 per cent. This increase, admittedly, will reach down into the necessities of life in which the price of steel plays a part. It may cause a slight increase in the price of living in the United States, although it will not be noticeable here. But even if it is, it is well worth while.

Bobbie And His Pa

Our teecher was telling us in skool today about a long word, wish is called Gratty-tood, I guess that is the rite way to spell it, Gratty-tood.

The Political Outlook

BY PUTNAM WEALE

While these columns have correctly cronicled the march of events—if you can describe a shuffling backwards and forwards a march—the fact should not be lost sight of that practically no progress has yet been made in solving the major problem created by the driving away of President Li. Two months is a long time to elope in the political world without progress; but it is exactly that period since Pien Shou-ching, the Chairman of the Chihli Provincial Assembly, came into action with his whirlwind police and gendarmerie strike, thinking that the game was in his hands.

From all indications the game is not in his hands—not by a long way. Perhaps it is less so than it was even a month ago. Leaving aside the important point that the struggle between the two political wings of the Chihli Party—the Tientsin wing and the Paoting wing—is becoming more and more bitter, it should be remembered that the Chihli Party is predominantly a military party and as such its real Chief is General Wu Pei-fu. Now General Wu Pei-fu has not only been developing the awkward habit of remaining silent, but his men throw a monkey wrench into the machinery whenever it looks like moving. They do this because they know that so long as Manchuria continues its active arming operations and possess a potentially hostile striking force at the gates of North China of 100,000 men, so long will all talk of reconciliation and a solid front from the Yangtze to the Heilungchiang to dominate China be mere hot air.

The Sun Yat-sen danger is a long way off, so is the Anfu danger—but Chang Tso-ling and what he stands for is a real and vital challenge—concentrated, well-provisioned, well-armed and sufficently detached from intramural embarrassments to be translated into action at the physchological moment.

What will this force do?—that is the main issue in Chinese politics today in spite of all by-play in the Capital. Whether it will act or remain quiescent no man know—not even Chang Tso-ling himself, because the time for knowing has not yet arrived. If this point is well borne in mind, something of Marshal Tsao Kun's real and increasing perturbation at the possibility of the great prize slipping through his fingers should be patent even to foreigners.

Australian Woollen Industry

A company has been formed to deal with the woollen industry in Australia in a more comprehensive way than is now done by any mills in England. The wool will be dealt with locally from the sheep's back to the finished article. Whole clips of wool will be purchased, and every grade will receive treatment for the manufaiture of the highest worsted wool down to the lowest blanket wool. Each section of manufacture will be specialised, and all waste products will be concentrated in one spot for treatment. The company will cooperate with pastoral interests as well as with selling interests. Mr. F. W. Tietyens has announced that the promoters comprise Dr. N. W. Kater, who had taken a part in the Bawra negotiations; Mr. Arthur Manchee, grazier; Mr. O. E. Friend, a director of the Commercial Bank; Mr. F. G. White, grazier, Mr. Thos. Daskein, grazier, who had been appointed by the Imperial Government during the war to investigate the possibilities of woollen manufacture in Egypt. Mr. W. A. Doyle, managing director of Suzuki and Company, Japan, and Mr. Hincks, machinery expert and Australian representative of the Amalgamated Woollen Machinery, Bradford, England. It is proposed to float a subsidiary company, which will be known as the "B" Company to carry out the floatation of the company with a capital of £1,000,000. The former company is now practically floated. A chain of mills will be erected throughout New South Wales and their floatation will be undertaken by the company. The first mill will be at Albury, and the second in Sydney. Others will be located at suitable towns where the residents show a disposition to put up the capital. The company will undertake everything in the way of supply of suitable machinery and its erection, and will place the finished products on the world's markets.

:-: Reputation :-:

BY RITA WEIMAN

Have you ever paused to consider how many of us confuse reputation with character? Particularly when we're judging people in the public eye, whose names are bound to travel from lip to lip, is there a very decided tendency to label them good or bad, dangerous or decent, according to the stories that float around us as thick as dust in the air.

We don't even whisper these stories as gossip. We don't attach the usual phrase, "I hear that——" to them. We merely accept them as truth without even the inclination to discredit them.

The reputations of prominent people, as a rule, have nothing whatever to do with their characters. Once the spotlight of public notice is turned on them it forms a glare blinding those who gaze. The real man or woman ceases to exist. The public is not interested in them as they really are. But the stories woven round them, frequently originating in the heads of their own press agents, are swallowed and digested as fact. More often than we realise, reputations are manufactured.

Take, as an example, moving picture stars. Some of them are simply simple folks, happily married, working hard to support their families. But who in the world is interested in knowing that? A bill of good character is never as thrilling to read as an account of all-night parties that extend into several days. Consequently, the press agents must be kept busy concocting new yarns that may charcoal reputations, but can be counted upon to add fuel to the flame of interest.

Recently, news came from Hollywood of the engagements of two famous stars. It was denied, affirmed, contradicted, and finally announced. Their pictures together were in all the Sunday supplements. Then the engagement was broken—for some utterly silly reason. Long before this happened, those familiar with the game had realised that it was a "stunt" calculated to keep their names before the public. Meanwhile that public was shaking its wise head and saying.

"Those movie stars—don't they cut up though?"

Which was exactly what their press agents were after! If their names aren't bandied back and forth there's always the danger of slipping into obscurity. It is the vast American public they must please—not to mention the rest of the world—and once they become commonplace, like other men and women that public loses the thrill of curiosity about them.

It is human nature for those of us who stay within the quiet four walls of family life, where love is snugly nested, to believe that those storming the citadel public favor are just a little more wicked, just a bit more lax in their morals than we are. In a way, it's like the story of Santa Claus. It puts them in a world apart and we have no desire to discover that it hasn't any foundation in fact.

When we hear that a multi-millionaire has made his millions in a fluke that robbed some other man, it consoles us for having failed to collect a fortune ourselves. We wouldn't have stooped to such methods. Our conscience, at least, is clear. We sleep nights—maybe he doesn't.

Go through the list of fortunes amassed within the last fifty years. To each is attached some scandal a yarn which, however it may call forth condemnation, at least keeps alive interest in the family to which it attaches. Even those who live strictly according to convention are, if they are in the public eye, often astonished to hear the stories circulated about themselves; more interested, perhaps, than any other listener. It is exactly as if they were hearing gossip about another person, and often a great deal more amusing. Like the old woman in the Mother Goose rhyme, they find themselves murmuring: "Laws-a-mercy on us—can this be really I?"

Sometimes the things that are said hurt. Sometimes they are cruel as only careless gossip can be. But of one thing you can be perfectly certain—most of the time they are nothing more than fairy tales woven by some facile brain that either enjoys or is paid for doing it.

Once Overs

BY J. J. MUNDY

"This remark came from a man of fifty: "I am getting to be an old man, and it is time to drop out of things. I should not work as hard as I do at present and I should conserve what strength I have."

These remarks are true in a sense, but what is the hurry to drop out if health and strength are good?

As long as a man feels well and strong why give so much consideration to the passing of years?

It is not years which makes a man old, it is the mental point of view; and right living should be as vigorously indulged as in youth.

Why draw a drab curtain until it is necessary to your life?

Thinking yourself old is going to age you unnecessarily. Better shake yourself loose from this bugaboo.

Throw back your shoulders and be a real man or a real woman.

As time goes on your experiences are richer and you live more easily and gain better results if you use your head.

Take an interest in everything around you.

Do the things which keep you young—enthusiasm and a purpose high enough to keep you constantly at it are essential. Good humor counts big, also.

those who greet us must be cheery.

No matter if old age affects the eggs the waiter brings.

We who enlist as optimists, determined to sit pretty,
Must school ourselves to take what comes, and utter no complaint;
We can't afford, if Fortune twists our noses, to seek privy,
And if the liver that we get at breakfast time is gritty
We must not for a moment cease to practice self-restraint.

We who pretend, when clouds descend, to see the silver lining
Must not let indigestion cause our smiles to disappear;
The painful cost of love that's lost must be no cause for whining,
And if we lose through signing things we should have kept from signing
We can't afford to cease to preach the gospel of good cheer.

We who assure men they can shake their troubles off by trying
Must not be caught in doleful moods or let our courage fail;
We must be strong enough to take our lickings without crying,

THE WOUNDED VETERAN

A PARTY of Northern tourists passed through Houston the other day, and while their train was waiting at the depot an old colore man, with one arm bandaged and hung in an old red handkerchief for a sling, walked along the platform.

"What's the matter with your arm, uncle?" called out one of the tourists.

"It was hurt in de wah, sah. Hab you any 'bacco you could gib a po'ole niggah, sah?"

Several of the tourists poked their heads out of the car windows to listen, and in a few moments the old darky had taken up a collection in his hat, consisting of a plug of tobacco, three or four cigars, and sundry nickels, dimes and quarters.

"How were you wounded?" asked a tourist. "Were you shot in the arm."

"No sah; hit wasn't exac' by a shot."

"Piece of shell strike you."

"No, sah; wasn't a shell."

"Bayonet wound, maybe."

"No, boss; hit wasn't a bayonet."

"What battle were you in?"

"Don't know of it had a name, but hit was a mighty hot flight while it lasted."

"Do you draw a pension?"

"No, boss."

"It seems it would be a charitable act," said a tourist to the others, "to take this old darky's name and see that he gets the pension he is certainly entitled to. What is your name, uncle?"

"Mose Atkisson, sah."

"Now, Moses," said the tourist, "give me the particulars of the engagement you were in, and the date, and all the information you possess about the manner in which you were wounded, and the government will pay you a nice little sum every three months to help you along."

"Am dat so, boss?" asked the old darkey, his eyes growing big with wonder. "Den I'll sho tell you about hit. Hit wus jest befo' supper en I was totin' a big chance ob wood in to make a fish, when—"

Do Glaciers Move?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

It is reported that an investigation is about to be undertaken among the Alaskan glaciers with the view of ascertaining whether any signs can be detected of the approach of a new age of ice. In connection with this it has been an advance of the glaciers, which may be a sign of the approach of a period of cold and of the ice invasions of the Pleistocene period.

If we knew what the principal cause of an ice age was it might be possible to predict its coming long in advance—but that we do not know. Theories are both contradictory and unsatisfactory. General elevation of a continent would unquestionably lower the temperature of the atmosphere glaciation in the northern hemisphere.

But, it is doubtful if there is any general advance of the glaciers. In some places they have advanced, and elsewhere they have receded in recent times. A true "ice age" would involve a great deal more than simply an increase in the bulk and length of existing glaciers flowing down from eternally snow-clad mountains. Its characteristic feature would be the covering of vast continental areas with a permanent burden of snow and ice.

There are evidences of certain "pulses" of climate, as Professor Ellsworth Huntington calls them, involving changes from wet to dry and from cold to warm and vice versa, which, while they may seriously affect certain regions of the earth do not include the most important part of an entire hemisphere, as was the case with covering it, and if the elevation were sufficient it would become permanently snow-burdened, just as high mountains do for a similar reasons. Rarefied air does not retain heat to the same degree as denser air. A change in the constitution of the air might also result in a general cooling. Professor Chamberlain has suggested a depletion of the carbon dioxide and moisture in the atmosphere as a cause for a fall of the average temperature of the earth.

More appealing all around seems the astronomical theory, which rests upon certain periodical alterations in the form of the earth's orbit and the position of its axle of rotation with reference to the sun. But if this theory is accepted we would seem to be safe from a new glacial invasion for a good many thousand years to come. On the other hand, the southern hemisphere ought now to suffer from glaciation, which, in fact, it does not (except near the pole), and when facts oppose theories the latter must be abandoned or a satisfactory explanation of the discrepancy must be found.

Those who maintain the astronomical theory, think that such an explanation is furnished by the fact that the southern hemisphere is an oceanic one, and the ocean always modifies climate, while the northern hemisphere is a land one, and broad continental areas always promote extremes of climate. Consequently, they say, although the southern hemisphere now has its Winter when the earth is farthest from the sun (aphelion), it does not suffer from that condition as the northern hemisphere will do some eleven thousand years hence, when its turn will come to have Winter with the sun at its maximum distance. A perihelion Summer (nearest the sun) is short and hot, and an aphelion Winter long and cold, and the effects of the latter are calculated to overbalance those of the former and so tend to glaciation.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen.

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and effective laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Radio Spreading Throughout Japan

According to the Japanese Press, regulations are now being drafted for the use and control of broadcasting in this country, with a view to their being made public in the autumn and also to the institution of a broadcasting service in the early part of next year. The papers claim to have learned that the whole country will be divided up into several sections with Tokio, Osaka, Fukuoka, and Sapporo as the centers of each section, and each center with a radius of approximately three hundred miles. Each section of the country will, it is understood, be placed in charge of a wireless service organisation, to which the subscribers in that section will pay a fixed fee for their receiving sets, and which will control the sale of instruments. The Government is expected to assist in the institution of the service with a subsidy.
